The depositions taken embrace the names of nearly all the early prominent settlers of the county. The positions of the various localities named called into requisition the knowledge of such old hunters, fort builders and Indian scouts, including---Ambrose Coffee....

1809 In his deposition in the Clay/Banta land dispute, Ambrose Coffee deposed that he first became acquainted with Muddy Creek in the year 1777 as he had come to Kentucky in 1776. Rod A. Coffey 1729 So. Downing St.

Dear Rod,

I appreciated receiving the information you enclosed and the SASE. So many inquiries throw a few names at me and no SASE and expect immediate and helpful answers. It was very refreshing receiving your letter. I enjoy trying to help.

I've looked through everything I have and am afraid I can't help you very much. I did find one mention of Ambrose Coffee and can tell you that it was my ancestor, John Hough who married Sarah Janney, that employed your ancestor.

In the book "Hough in Loudoun County, Virginia 1744-1850..." by Orville Louis Hough p 33 is the following quote:
"He also purchased much land prior to the creation of Loudoun County in 1757 from Fairfax County, which was mentioned in deeds disposing of such purchased land. Much of this he farmed with hired help, such as Ambrose Coffee, Samuel, Robert Neal, James and Peter Pickler, for whom he was taxed (see Appendix: Tithables 1765-1799)."

This book was Copyright 1974 and printed in Denver. I do not have the entire book, just a few pages from it. At one time I was thinking of purchasing it and found a name and address for ordering. I don't know how long ago that was but it could indicate that Mr. Hough was not still alive. The address I have is Mary Rachak, 4439 S. Lowell, Denver, Colorado 80236 and the price was $30.00. Since you live in Denver also, it's quite possible that Mr. Hough donated a copy to the library there and possibly other information that he had.

I have much other information on the John Hough for whom he worked. He was a surveyor along with George Washington and the house he built and at which George visited is still standing not far outside Waterford in Loudoun Co. I've seen it and taken pictures. Actually it is still inhabited.

I did so want to be able to help but can't find anything other than this mention. The Houghs and the Janneys were both quite prominent in that area and were well established Quakers. I find nothing in my pages of Quaker records that mention your Coffee line but it might be worth investigating. My Quakers were all beginning to get into trouble with their religion by the mid 1700s and were being tossed out for one reason or another. Many ran afoul of the rules during the Revolution. When my militant Scots Dunkin line married into the Quakers
