Coffey Family History and Genealogy - Coffeytown Settlers and Their Descendants

Introduction

Although the Coffey family was not the first family to settle in the area now shown on the map as "Alto", this family did settle in such proportions that the small community grew to be called "Coffeytown" by the local neighbors. The origins of the Coffey family in Amherst County are the origins of Coffeytown. Our interest is primarily in developing an appreciation for the previous owners and users of our recently purchased property, and the immediate vicinity, in Coffeytown.

The basic outline of the family charts in this book was furnished by Elsie and Tommy Coffey; Mrs. Joyce Coffey Mason and Mrs. Thelma DePriest (Daniel Rufus); Hersey Coffey for his portion of the family; and Mrs. Diane Gardner for her Bristol, Tennessee branch of John Jack Coffey descendants. Additional verbal information was provided by various family members and incorporated into the charts.

Verbally furnished information is not considered sufficiently reliable information to form a valid genealogy; however, one must start somewhere. The original settlers, their ancestors and their children have been researched through public records available in the Virginia State Archives. This is the status of the charts included herein. Unless footnotes are given, all information provided in the charts is preliminary - to be verified with reference to written historical documents. Our interest has been essentially satisfied, in researching the original settlers and being able to tie the names on the tombstones to those first settlers. Research regarding each family line of descent is beyond our interest, but this basic structure would be very helpful to anyone who wishes to seriously investigate his own line of descent.

Coffey Family Legend has it that the first Coffey settlers in Coffeytown were all brothers and sisters. The earliest Coffey settlers (second generation) were Hudson, Schylar, John Jack, William "Billy", Nelson and Henry Coffey, and women Elizabeth, Susanna, and Jane Coffey, a total of nine who were known to have lived, married, and had children in or around Coffeytown in Amherst County.

According to the census reports, the first Coffey to settle in what is now Amherst County was Jordan Coffey. He brought his wife - Elizabeth Rippetoe, daughter of Peter and Sarah Rippetoe - and nine children from Nelson County sometime during or before 1827. Jordan married Elizabeth on 21 March or May 1803 in what was then Amherst County but is now Nelson County. At this time Jordan had a guardian, Benjamin Fitzgerald. In the 1800 tax records, Jordan is listed as "Jordan Fitzgerald (alias Coffey)". Evidently his father was deceased, or left the family. His mother may have been a "Fitzgerald" who then went to live with her father or brother Benjamin. This part of the ancestry is not clear in the records. Neither Jordan nor Elizabeth appear in any of the death records which might shed some light on his ancestry, nor did he leave a will. I've found no evidence to suggest that he owned any real estate, although his son Hudson deeded his mare, bed and some furniture to his father in Amherst County in 1827. None of the deed book indexes in the state archives list Jordan as an owner of real estate, within the timeframe of his life. Further research into the guardianship question is ongoing, but this is laborious - searching through court records which are not indexed. Indeed there may not have ever been a formal guardianship established. To establish lineage, Jordan's parents must be verified.

The record is clear that all three of the daughters, sons John Jack, Billy, and Hudson Coffey were the children of Jordan and Elizabeth Coffey. All were verified through marriage records. Specific references to the parentage of Nelson and Schylar Coffey were not found. Henry Coffey's parents were listed on his death record as Charles and Jane Coffey of Nelson County. Although this information was furnished by his son Henry, it doesn't make sense since there were no Charles and Jane Coffeys of the proper age in Nelson County (as heads of household) that we could find, at the time. Some Henry Coffey appears in Rockbridge County on the 1810 Census Index, 7 years before this Henry was born. Evidently there were more than one or two Henry Coffeys around and the records are consequently difficult to understand. The death record could be for a different Henry, but I doubt that any other Henry Coffey in Amherst County would have been born in Nelson County, married an Elizabeth, and had a child named Henry, as well as living in the same time-frame. On the other hand, why would his son guess at his grandparent's names if he didn't know? Many death records don't list parentage because the survivors simply didn't know. It is possible that Henry F. thought he knew and was simply mistaken, or that Charles and Jane lived their lives and had their children without ever becoming heads of a household, at least not at census-report-time. Research is continuing. It would be very difficult to prove the death record wrong.

In the 1830 census, only the head of the household is listed by name. The other persons living in the house are listed by gender and age bracket. Later census reports list each individual's age, although not always accurately. Comparing later reports with the 1830 census, the age brackets work out for all the Coffey children except the youngest (0-5 years old). None of the 9 children were that young in 1830. Possibly John Jack Coffey, who married in January of 1830, was living elsewhere when the census was taken in the summer, perhaps renting a room, so he would not be listed separately as the head of a household. The youngest, ninth child may have died before the 1840 census, or may have been the young child of a cousin, living in the Coffey household for the summer. Since death records were not kept until 1853, and even then not all deaths were reported, this may remain a minor mystery. If John Jack was gone, and the ninth child died, which was all too common, this still leaves nine children. If Henry, Schylar, and Nelson were not part of them, who were the others? Family history is full of such mysteries, which is what makes it interesting. One possible theory is that all three of these Coffey males were taken in and reared by Jordan and Elizabeth, and all three knew who their biological parents were. It is possible that Charles and Jane were the parents of all three. Because Schylar and Nelson were so much older than Henry, there may have been other children involved who were "farmed out" to other Coffeys. If the children were adopted informally, say upon the death of Charles and/or Jane, there would be no record. Jordan, having had first hand experience with guardianship, may have insisted that his informally adopted children be aware of their biological heritage.

{Edmund F. Coffey of Nelson County had several children, among them William B. and John Coffey, but these are not Billy and John Jack. William B. and John lived their lives in Nelson County. William B. drowned at the age of 60 in Nelson County in 1867, Billy Coffey appears in census reports in Amherst years later (1870). The belief that Edmund F. is the ancestor may stem from the fact that Amherst County once incorporated Nelson County, and records for those persons in what is now Nelson County appear in the pre-1807 records of Amherst County. However, the 1810 and 1820 census reports, taken just after the counties separated, show no Coffeys/ Coffees/ Coffys in Amherst County until 1830, and then only Jordan Coffey and his family of eleven. Later census reports show Jordan, Elizabeth, and Hudson living together and within the community of Coffeys in Pedlar district of Amherst County, including John Jack; and Billy. It is clear to me from the public records examined to date that Jordan and Elizabeth are the parents of John Jack, Billy, Hudson and the three daughters. The jury is still out on Henry, Schylar, and Nelson. They may have been brothers themselves, but cousins to John Jack and Billy. They may have been living with Jordan's family, or came along later, independent of Jordan and Elizabeth.)

The first deed for real estate owned by a Coffey in Amherst County, which appears in the deed books at the State Archives, lists Nelson Coffey and others as owning 170 acres which had been previously owned and lived-on by Robert Hamilton, father of Rebecca Coffey (Nelson's wife), John Hamilton (Elizabeth Coffey's husband), and Elizabeth Hamilton Coffey (wife of Schylar Coffey). This occurred in 1842, some years after Jordan's family moved into Amherst County, and as a result of a lawsuit presumably over the question of inheritance of the land and house. (This may have been the connection which brought Schylar and Nelson Coffey to Amherst County. The marriage of Jordan's daughter Elizabeth into the Hamilton family may have been the reason the two groups ended up living more or less together in Coffeytown.) Other information indicates 1825/1832 as a date of first purchase of land in Amherst County by the Coffey family, but this has not been verified in the County Deed Books (none of these show in the indexed listings in the State Archives, but they may still be true dates. Most of the Coffeys of this era were illiterate, and may not have recognized the necessity of recording deeds.)

Apparently all of the boys and none of the girls settled in the Coffeytown area. Based on census reports, the oldest was Hudson, then Schylar, John Jack, Billy, Nelson and Henry. Since the girls went with their husbands to places other than Coffeytown, they are listed at the end of the Original Family charts. Evidently none of their offspring were instrumental in settling Coffeytown. The earliest marriage was John Jack in 1830. Between 1830-1835 all the others except Hudson and Henry had taken first spouses. Hudson may have been the first Coffey in Amherst County, who then convinced his parents and siblings to come to Amherst County, where all were married within a few years of their arrival. Henry married in 1848, Hudson did not marry until 1855. Both parents (J & E) appear in Amherst in the 1830, 1840 and 1850 census reports, neither appear in the 1860 or later census reports anywhere in Virginia. Apparently, both Jordan and Elizabeth Rippetoe died between 1850-1860, but neither death was reported to the Courthouse. (This implies death before 1853, when the law went into effect requiring the County Clerks to keep vital statistic records.) Perhaps only then (1855) did Hudson marry. He seems to have been very dedicated to his parents.

Apparently Henry Coffey's wife had been previously married and those first children, births dating back to 1830, were hers by a previous marriage. They may have taken his surname in much the same way that Jordan used the Fitzgerald name prior to marriage. When Paulin Coffey died, his will clearly indicates Henry as his guardian, not his father. It seems that only Avarilla Coffey Davis, Henry F. and Mary Coffey Crawford were blood offspring of Henry Coffey. Strangely, Avarilla was just a little younger than Paulin, and she seems to have been born somewhat before Henry and Elizabeth were married.

Nelson Coffey seems to have died fairly young, between 1844-1849. He was apparently alive when the court awarded property in early 1842, and alive late enough for Rebecca Hamilton his wife to become pregnant with little Nelson, who was 5 years old in 1850. Apparently he was dead when his wife Rebecca remarried, to an Abram Clement, 5 years her junior, in 1849. Abram was killed in the Civil War in Harrisonburg on 6 June 1862. In 1870, 55 year old Rebecca is again the head of the household, with 19 year old John Clement and 21 year old "Missouri?" Clement, her daughter, living in. Pauline, Nelson's daughter, was 28 in 1870, and living with Edward Drummond (45), Moses Coffey (6), and William Coffey (2), probably her children. At the age of 36, Pauline applied for a marriage license but the record is not clear if the marriage took place. She may have been married earlier but I have found no record of her marriage. Both Nelson and Rebecca were illiterate.

Schylar Coffey may have actually been Schyuler Coffey, as his name is sometimes written. If so, both he and Nelson have geographically derived names. There was a group of Coffeys and Rippetoes at the northeast foot of Piney Mountain in what is today Nelson County, according to early deeds. A small portion of the Schyuler District dips down into an area at the northeast foot of the Piney Mountain. Nelson was born around the time this area became Nelson County (1807). None of the records we've found to date list his parents. He left no will and his death was not reported, although he lived beyond 1853. Henry is also the name of a county (formed 1777). It is entirely possible that Henry, Schuyler, and Nelson were brothers, all the sons of Charles and Jane Coffey, but this is pure speculation at this time. Additional documentation is needed to establish the parentage of Nelson and Schylar Coffey.

In researching the Coffey family we found that the surname originates from the Irish "O'Cobhthaigh" which means "victorious".

Apparently the very first Coffey to see Virginia was John Coffey, in 1637. He could have been a crew member on the ship and may have returned to Ireland/England the same year. We have not found any evidence that he stayed. Jamestown was only 20 years old at the time. Another possible Coffey, Abraham Cofface (sic), came to Virginia in 1653, but again, no further record.

The earliest found reference to Coffey settlers in Virginia is to a Edward Coffey who had a wife, Ann Powell, daughter of Thomas Powell, and 2 sons, John and Edward, along with daughters Martha, Ann, Annister, and Elizabeth, according to his will, dated 14 February 1715, filed in Essex County, and probated 20 November 1716. Edward and Ann were married in 1700 in Essex County. Edward earned his "freedom, corn, and clothes" from Benjamin Mosely on 4 April 1706, in Essex County. This is a strong implication that Edward Coffey came over as an indentured servant to Benjamin Mosely, although his name does not appear in the passenger lists of early immigrants.

(I understand that there was a law in the early colonial days which required those without visible means of support to become indentured. This applied to long time inhabitants as well as newcomers.) Indentured servants usually served for seven years, although the term varied. Edward may have arrived in 1699, or he may have received an early release upon the death of his master. Upon the death of Benjamin, William Mosely administered the will which gave Edward his freedom. In 1714 Edward sold 118 acres of land on the branches of Occupatia Creek to John Barbee in exchange for 500 pounds of "lawful sweet scented tobacco". Edward had previously bought this land from Augustine Smith who continued to live adjacent to Edward. Remarkably, Edward Coffey owned land as early as 10 October 1707, when Mr. Smith sold 93 acres to Henry Martin, such acreage being adjacent to Edward Coffey's land. For a man who had just been granted his freedom, corn, and clothes only 18 months earlier, Edward moved rapidly. According to The Planters of Colonial Virginia, by Thomas Wertenbaker, 1922, less than five percent of the indentured servants ever became landowners.

On 16 July 1716, sons Edward and John Coffee bought 200 acres along the same creek in exchange for 8000 pounds of tobacco to John Mosely, perhaps the son of Benjamin Mosely. This is the property known as Mosely's Quarters, and is located on a branch of Occupatia Creek, perhaps adjacent to land owned by their father and his former master.

John Coffey, son of Edward Coffey, married Jane Graves and they had James Coffey in Essex County in 1729 (secondary source of information). Edward's wife Ann evidently remarried a Duling. Her will, dated 1744, deeds property to her daughter Annister Coffey and grandson James Coffey. Perhaps grandson James was John's son James.

Tobacco was the economic mainstay of the seventeenth century colonies. Although the British often siphoned off much of the profits by means of tariffs and other taxes, tobacco was the means by which many yeomen made their "fortunes". While there were ups and downs over the years, the British Navigation Acts having had a profound effect upon planters' profits, the "end" of the tobacco gravy train was the last two decades of the seventeenth century, and the first decade of the eighteenth. Edward came in on the last wave of very high profitability in tobacco. Ultimately it was a sudden rise in the use of slaves which put the small planters at a disadvantage and forced many of them to look elsewhere for profits. The colonial government promoted many schemes for frontier settlement, including the award of property for military service. Caught in a profit squeeze, the Coffey's, like so many other colonial citizens, looked westward for land more suitable for crops other than sweet-scented tobacco. A John Coffey was involved in Dunmore's War (an Indian uprising in the upper Valley) in 1774 for which Lord Dunmore signed a certificate for him to receive land in Virginia. It is not clear where the land may have been, even the County is not listed.

In 1748 a Peter Coffey bought 220 acres on Vaughan's Creek in Prince Edward County. By 1783, Susannah Coffee and 2 others were the only Coffees known by Census to be left in Prince Edward County, although there is some indication that General John Coffee, who had a brigade in Tenn in 1814, came from this area also. This Peter Coffey could be the one who was tried in London and sentenced to 14 years in prison in Potomack, Maryland. He came to the Colonies in chains in 1731; or some other Peter. Although there weren't many people around in those days, by today's standards, there was much repetition in given and surname combinations.

Reubin Coffey was born in Albemarle County in 1759, according to a secondary source. On 8 September 1760, some Edward Coffey made out a promisory note to Thomas Henderson, which he evidently could not pay, and ended up being arrested in 1762 to answer suit by Henderson. All this, and other legal proceedings concerning John Coffey, Sr., Cleveland, James, Thomas, Benjamin, and William Coffey occurred in what was then Albemarle County in the 1760's. (Albemarle included Amherst and Nelson at this time.) In Deed Book 2, John Coffey sold 124 acres to James Coffey on 9 March 1758. This property was at the heads of the branches of the Hardware River. In 1760 John Coffey, Jr. bought 90 acres from David and Rebecca Lewis at Michum River and Ivy Creek (now in Nelson County).

James Coffey of "Albermarle County" bought property from Thomas Jefferson on the Tye River in 1764. The purchase was witnessed by William Coffey who, 4 years later, bought 120 acres of it from James. If this James is the son of John Coffey previously mentioned, he would have been 35 years old at the time of purchase. On 26 February 1770 William and Ruth Rippetoe sold 200 acres to William Hall. This property was on the northeast side of Piney Mountain, bordering the property of Edward and Cleveland Coffey, in what soon became (1807) the Schuyler District of Nelson County.

In 1790, just one year after the Colonies became The United States, William Coffey, Jr. married Polly Rippetoe, possibly an older sister of Elizabeth who later married Jordan Coffey. In 1802, the year that Edmund Coffey married Elizabeth Burger, a William Coffey bought 215 acres of land on the Tye River from Peter and Sarah Rippetoe. This was approximately 6 months before Jordan married Elizabeth. Jordan's guardian Benjamin Fitzgerald shows up in 1810 clearly in Nelson County, and other evidence points to present day Nelson County, as the breeding grounds of the Coffeys who ultimately went southwest to settle "Coffeytown". Whether the Tye River group of Coffeys (perhaps descended from John Coffey, son of Edward Coffey) or the Ivy Creek/Piney Mountain settlers (perhaps descended from Edward Coffey, son of Edward Coffey) is the ancestral pool for Coffeytown is not known at this time.

None of this discussion establishes a direct lineage of Coffeys back to Edward Coffey of Essex County. We have also found reference to a Hugh Coffey in Lancaster County, who seems to have been contemporary with the original Edward Coffey, perhaps his brother, but we have not yet found anything concerning his descendants. It will take a great deal more research to establish lineage. The key to the ancestry of Coffeytown inhabitants is Jordan Coffey and the current mystery surrounding the guardianship of Benjamin Fitzgerald. Court records, if a formal guardianship was established, could prove very helpful. If Jordan was ever christened or baptized, church records may name his parents. Then perhaps direct ancestry can be established and the line traced with some degree of certainty.

This booklet presents all that is known of the original 9 Coffey settlers in the first section of charts, "ORIGINAL COFFEY FAMILY IN AMHERST COUNTY". Each of the 6 males are repeated in later sections, in presumed order of birth, with a written article about each one. Behind each of the male's charts showing his immediate family are additional family charts of each grandchild and their descendants. Each grandchild is also presented in order of birth wherever that order is known. This progression continues as far down the genealogical ladder as information is available. If you have additional information, we would be pleased to add it to our charts, and continue to expand the list of descendants of those first Coffey settlers.

Records less than 75 years old are not readily available to the general public, so most of the remaining (current) lineage is based on verbal information. Census, birth, marriage and death records are not readily available at this time for verification of those generations. Some dates are taken from headstones and are so noted (these are not always accurate). Other dates, where estimated from census reports, are shown as "Ca.", meaning approximately. These are not always accurate either.

Jordan, Elizabeth and most of their children and ancestors were illiterate. Those who took census information were generally not much more capable. Misspellings and misdesignations are not uncommon, especially in rural counties, and the records are incomplete. Would a grief-stricken widow hitch-up the wagon and brave the 30 miles of mountainous terrain to the courthouse to tell a "revenuer" her husband or infant had just died in a snowstorm? Such information itself was often second hand and given only when convenient, sometimes much later. Birth and death records are less reliable than marriage records with regard to actual dates. Unfortunately, the birth records for Amherst County are extremely faded and difficult to read on microfilm, so we have little of that information. The statewide index of births is also hard to read on microfilm, but we are making some headway.

Should you notice a mistake, or have additional, documented information, please notify us at the address indicated on the bottom of each sheet. Neither this information nor the charts is copyrighted. You are welcome to copy and distribute as you wish, but please keep in mind that this Genealogy/Family History is only an outline at this time. A fully developed family history takes years to develop and is almost never fully verified. Some of the family charts are more extensive than others because those who have taken the time to provide information are, naturally, more familiar with their own segments of the Coffey family.

Hopefully this small glimpse at the public records and the family charts will add some understanding to the ancestry of the Coffey family of present day Amherst County, provide some documented information regarding the early settlers of Coffeytown, and provide a framework for those wishing to seriously pursue Coffey family genealogy further.

In 1807, Nelson county was taken out of Amherst County. According to census reports, in 1810 and 1820 there were no Coffey families in Amherst County. Jordan "Fitzgerald" Coffey along with 10 other people (presumably 9 children) show up in Amherst in the 1830 Census. In 1840, there were 4 people in this Coffey household: 2 males aged 20-30, Jordan (50-60), and Betsey (60-70). Jordan was old enough to be the father of all the Coffey "Coffeytown" settlers. Sufficient indication of such has been found for most but not all of the original nine. Jordan may have been the guardian for some of the original settlers.

HUDSON COFFEY

Hudson "Huddie" Coffey was the eldest son of Jordan and Elizabeth Rippetoe Coffey. He was born in 1804-1805, approximately two years after their marriage, in what is now Nelson County, probably along the Tye River in the general area of what is now Tyro, or more likely further east near the Piney Mountain and Ivy Creek.

Hudson deeded some of his property - a mare, bed and some furniture - to his father in 1827. This deed is listed in the Amherst County files, and is dated Dec. 31, 1827. This may have related to taxes, but the motive is not clear. Perhaps Hudson was simply devoted to his parents and wanted them to officially own something of his. It may have been compensation for Jordan's bringing his family to Amherst Co., as this is the earliest record found of Coffey family in present-day Amherst County. Jordan Coffey shows as the head of the household in the 1830, and 1840 Census Reports in Amherst County.

In the 1850 census report, where person's names are listed, Hudson is living with Jordan and Elizabeth in Amherst County. Within ten years, both his parents presumably died, as they do not show in any later census reports, and he was free to marry.

On 20 September 1855 Hudson married Mahala Lane, a widow. I don't know if there were any children by her first marriage, but census reports show a Joseph E. Coffey, presumably the son of Hudson and Mahala, living with the family in the Pedlar District of Amherst County. Joseph was 5 in 1860 and 16 in 1870 when the census was taken. Apparently Mahala was pregnant with Joseph at marriage or just after marriage. If she had other children, they were apparently too old to be living with the family in 1860. Perhaps Hudson continued living in his parent's house. His place of residence would be interesting to discover since it is likely that this is where Jordan and Elizabeth lived out the latter portion of their lives, and that this was the first Coffey dwelling in present day Amherst County.

Census reports show both Hudson and Mahala as illiterate. Nothing is known of his son, Joseph Coffey. Hudson is not listed in the Amherst County death records through 1896, and we don't have later census reports clear enough to establish his death date. He was 66 or 68 years old in 1870. Place of burial is unknown. He may be one of the early settlers of Coffeytown buried with only a boulder for his marker. Further research into deeds, etc. may turn up some information regarding his date of death.

SCHYLAR COFFEY

Schylar may have been the second son of Jordan and Elizabeth Coffey, born around 1806. The marriage records do not list his parents, and death records have not been found for him. Schylar and Nelson are the only two of the original 9 for whom no specific listing of parentage has been found. Further, when Nelson married in 1833, Schylar gave permission, not Jordan and Elizabeth, although they were alive and living in Amherst County at the time.

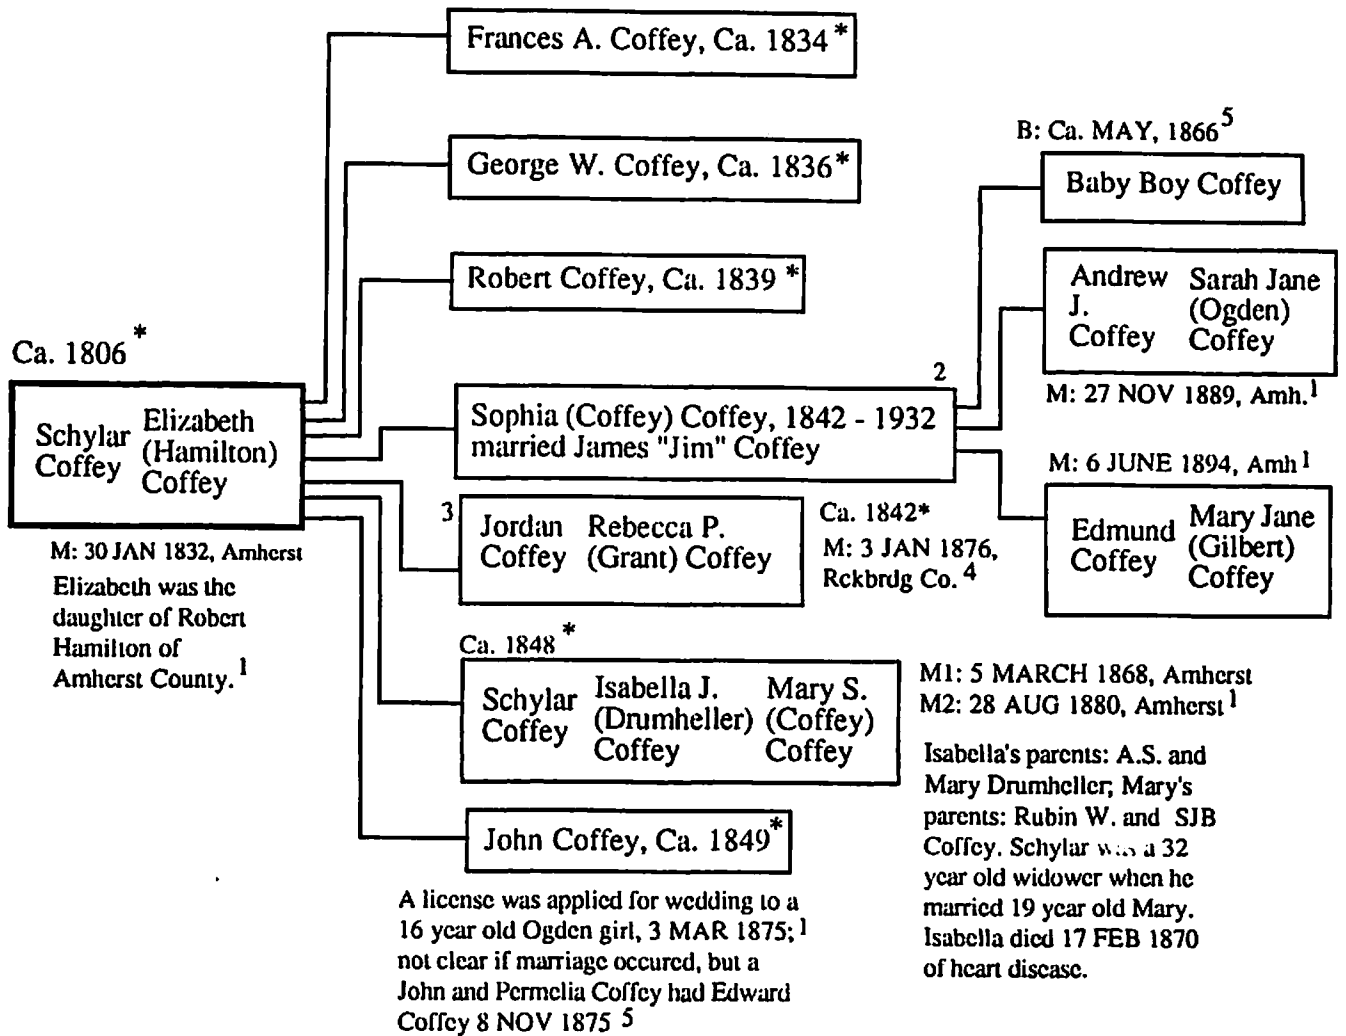

The ancestry of Nelson and Schylar is not firmly established. Both of these names relate directly to Nelson County geography. Nelson was born approximately when a portion of Amherst became Nelson County. One district in Nelson County is Schuyler District. On occasions, Schylar's name has been written exactly that way. There were Coffeys who bought land at the northeast foot of the Piney Mountain in Nelson County, near Ivy Creek. Schuyler District dips down to this area and could well have been the source of Schylar's name. He and Nelson may be brothers, but only cousins to John Jack and Billy.

Schylar married Elizabeth Hamilton, daughter of Robert Hamilton, and sister of Rebecca Hamilton who married Nelson Coffey, on 30 January 1832. It seems Schylar and Elizabeth had 7 children (see chart). Sophia, Jordan, Schylar and perhaps John all married. No information regarding any of the older three has been found, although this George W. Coffey may have enlisted in the Nelson Artillery during the Civil War. If so, then he lived to be at least 74 years old. There were many George W. Coffey's around - in Rockbridge, Augusta, Nelson and Amherst, and the records are too unclear at this time to establish that this particular George did anything. All three, Frances, George and Robert, were still living with their parents in Amherst in 1860. Frances, 40 at the time, was still there in 1870. Jordan Coffey was in Company I of the 49th Virginia Infantry, CSA. No information on the others.

Schylar and his wife were alive in 1870. No death records were found for either of them. However it may be that Schylar, Jr.'s second wife died in August 1895 of fever, in Rockbridge County. Strangely, that person's name is listed as "Elizabeth, wife of Schylar Coffee". Perhaps the record is incorrect and the name should have been "Mary", since the person who died was 36 years old. Schylar, Sr.'s wife would have been 80-90 by this time, and it is unlikely that she would have had a 14 year old daughter. On 12 October 1895, their 14 year old daughter Anne Belle Coffee, also died of fever. If the record is correct, young Schylar must have taken on a third wife, shortly after his second marriage; or this is an entirely different Schylar.

JOHN JACK COFFEY

John Jack Coffey was born around 1809, according to the census reports. I have not found his death date in any of the official records. He was probably the third son of Jordan and Elizabeth Coffey.

On 18 January 1830, John Jack married Elizabeth "Betsey" (Duff) Coffey, the daughter of Joshua and Besley Duff of Fluvanna County. His parents were not listed in that document, but Jordan and Elizabeth were listed as witnesses. Census records imply that this couple had 7 children, including Mark Coffey who appears as a 10 year old only in the 1850 Census. He probably died between 1850 and 1860, but his death does not appear in the County Death Records. Another possibility is that William Henry, who was also 10 years old at the time and is not listed by name in this report, could have been nicknamed "Mark". Or William Henry and Mark could have traded parents for the summer, when the Census was taken, which was common practice in those days.

John Jack's sons Charles, John Jack, Jr., William Henry and Daniel Rufus all lived in Coffeytown proper and provided much of the population of the western and northern portion of Coffeytown. No record of marriage has been found for Mary Coffey, but Sarah Jane married William Davis in 1859. William Henry and Daniel Rufus married sisters in a double wedding on 6 April 1868. Charles, the eldest son, married Sarah Jane Ogden on Valentine's day, 1854. John Jack, Jr. married Patara Tyler, who was listed as a 24 year old "domestic" in Charles' household in the 1860 Census.

In August of 1871, Betsey died of Cholera. Henry Coffey, same generation as John Jack, died in June of the same year of Colic. About 1-1/2 years later, John Jack took a young wife, 25 year old Virginia C. Campbell of Rockbridge County. Apparently there were no children by the second marriage. In this marriage record, John Jack's parents are listed as J and E Coffey, most likely Jordan and Elizabeth. At the time, he was 64 years old.

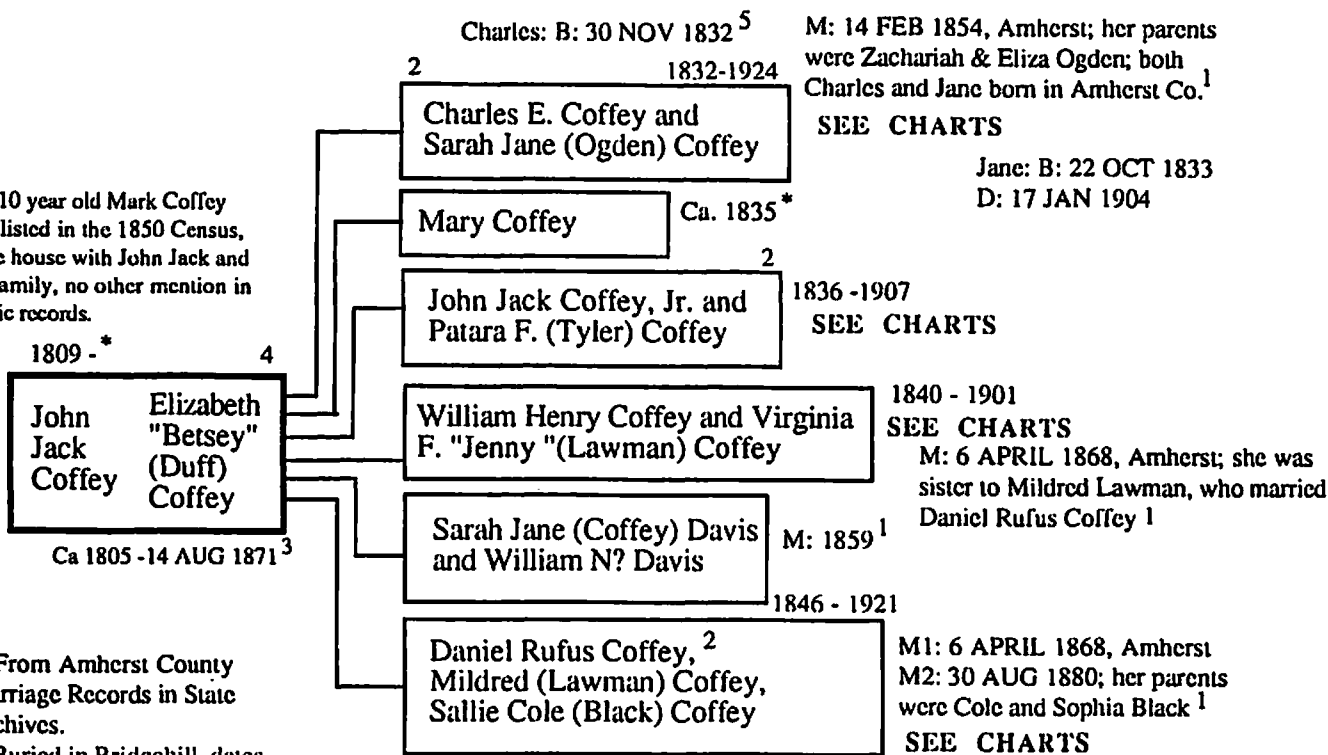

I have no death record for him or any place of burial for either him or Betsey. They may be buried behind the Arthur Coffey house (Elsie Coffey's present house) in an unmarked grave.

* Pitt was possibly named after Rev. Pitt Woodroof, a local Methodist minister. Pitt's mother Sarah Jane Coffey joined the Ashbury Chapel at Oronoco, and later joined the Macedonia Church. Rev. Woodroof was her first minister.

Not long after his marriage to Lucy, Pitt ran off to West Virginia with his mistress Flovonnice Fletcher, leaving his wife and child.

WILLIAM "BILLY" COFFEY

Billy Coffey was probably the fourth son of Jordan and Elizabeth Coffey. According to his headstone he was born 9 April 1815. Other information indicates 23 April 1815 as his date of birth.

Billy married Sarah Ann "Sally" (Crawford) Coffey on 24 September 1835 in Amherst County. His parents are clearly listed as Jordan and Elizabeth Coffey. Her mother was Sarah Crawford. This couple, along with John Jack, Sr., had most of the population of what became Coffeytown.

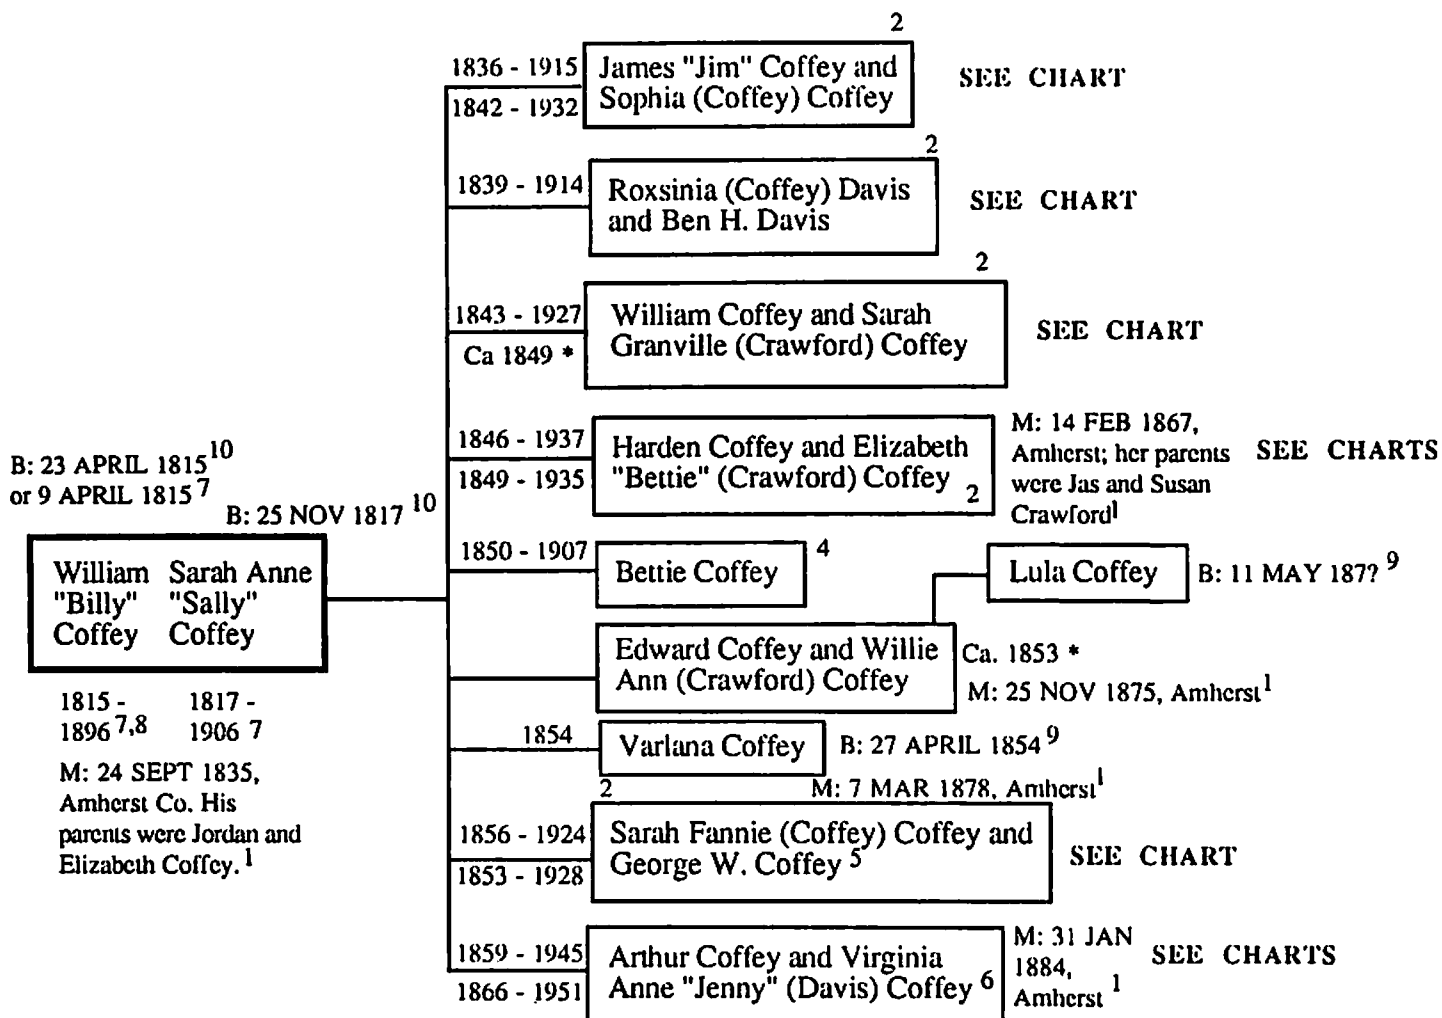

Billy and his family built a house just north of Staton's Creek to the immediate west of Elsie Coffey's present house, where the family grew up. It was not until 1897 that the house Elsie lives in now was constructed.

Billy's headstone shows a death date as 11 May 1896. Death records show a William Coffey, unlisted parents, dying 26 July 1897. Evidently Billy's death came as a result of falling down the stairs at the original house, after he had returned from the new house. If this is true and the new house was not built until 1897, the 26 July date may be accurate. Otherwise, it could have been over a year since his death when it was reported in Amherst Courthouse, and the record shows the reported date, not the actual date; or, the listed William is not the right one. However, the listed Billy was 81 years old, which is right for his age. No other William of that age was known to be in Amherst County at the time.

"Sally" and Billy Coffey are buried on the hill behind Elsie Coffey's house in a fenced-in area which includes Bettie Coffey, their unmarried daughter. Bettie evidently died of grief, as she was very attached to her mother. Others in the cemetery include Walter Campbell, perhaps related to John Jack's second wife, or to one of John Jack Jr.'s two daughters, Lena and Emma Jane, who married Campbell men in sufficient time to have had Walter. Robert H. Coffey, great-grandson of Billy Coffey, grandson of Harden Coffey and Hersey Coffey's brother, has the only other marked grave (1903-1907) in this cemetery.

NELSON COFFEY

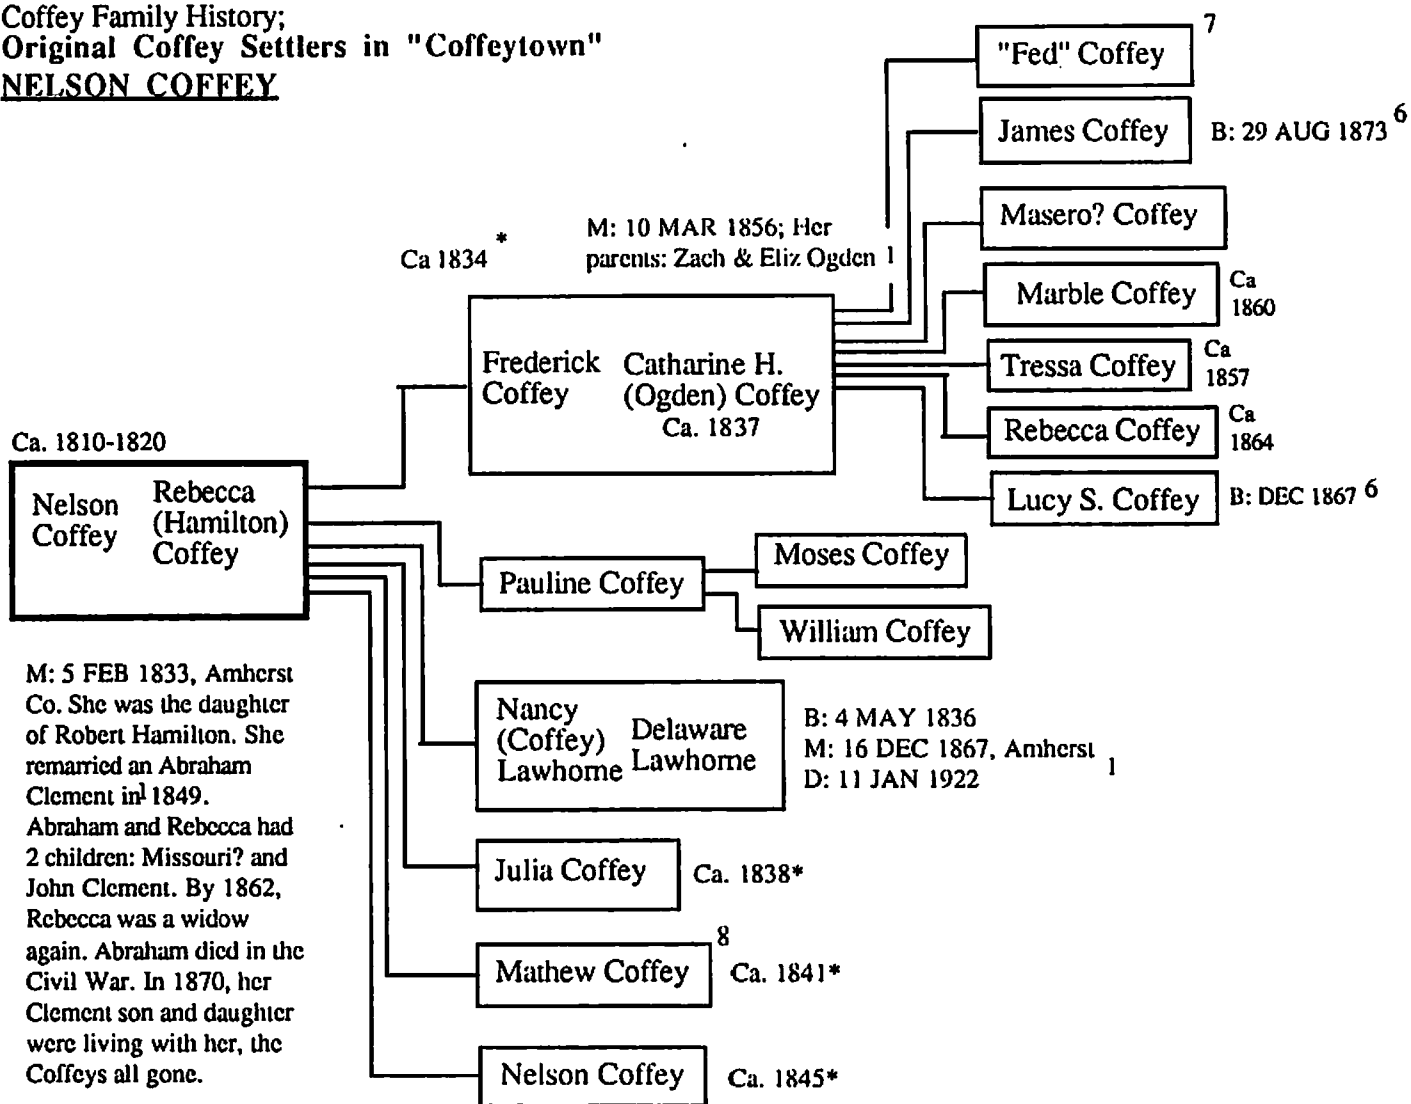

Nelson Coffey's birthdate and parents have not been pin-pointed. It seems clear (although still speculation) that Nelson was Schylar's brother, but the two of them may not have been brothers with the others.

Nelson married Rebecca Hamilton, daughter of Robert Hamilton, on 5 February 1833 in Amherst County. They had Frederick, Nancy, Julia, Mathew, Pauline, and Nelson Coffey. Nelson the older must have died sometime between 1844, when little Nelson was conceived, and 1849, when Rebecca remarried, to Abram Clement. In the 1850 Census, Frederick was a 16 year old farm laborer, living with Rebecca and her new husband. Rebecca and Abram had 2 children - Missouri? and John Clement - before Abram was killed in Civil War action in Harrisonburg in 1862. By 1870, Rebecca is alone again as the head of the household. Evidently Robert Hamilton, father of Rebecca and 2 others who married into the Coffey family, died in 1841. Unhappy with the distribution of assets, Nelson and others filed suit in Amherst County for some of the property and the house. In 1842, property was awarded with some payment involved (perhaps Nelson bought out the other children's share of the estate). This is the first recorded deed of Coffey land in present day Amherst County which I have found, and it included 170 acres.

Apparently Frederick Coffey settled on a farm near Irish Gap Inns, and Nancy settled south of Dodd's Ford. Pauline's marriage record could not be located. She had 2 children, Moses and William, both named Coffee, who could have been illegitimate. She was living with Edward Drummond in Amherst County for a while, perhaps as a domestic - he was much older than she. Application was made for a marriage license when she was 36 years old, and her children were teenagers, but it was not completed. Mathew Coffey, son of Nelson, may have been a Private in Co. I of the 58th Virginia Infantry, CSA. If this is the same Mathew Coffey, he died of measles in 1862 at Stribling Springs.

Coffey Family History;

HENRY COFFEY

Although Henry Coffey shows for the first time in the 1850 Census as the head of a household, he may have been one of 2 boys his age living with Jordan and Elizabeth in 1840. According to Census reports, Henry was born around 1817. He married, at the age of 31, Elizabeth (Ogden) Coffey, who was older than Henry, and evidently had several children of her own from a previous marriage. Probably Henry acted as guardian to her older children and they took his surname, at least for the census reports.

Paulin J. Coffey names Henry as his guardian in his will. Avarilla Coffey Davis listed him as her father on her marriage application, although she was apparently born 2 years or so prior to Henry's marriage to Elizabeth. If there was an earlier marriage by Henry, it is not listed in Amherst, Rockbridge, Albemarle, or Nelson counties.

Nothing is known of the elder children of Elizabeth. Paulin was only 3 when Henry married Elizabeth and he probably thought of him as his father. Paulin died evidently without marrying, at the age of 24. His will named the three children of Henry as benefactors. Henry's children Avarilla, Henry F. and Mary F. all married and had children of their own.

Henry Coffey died 10 June 1871 of Colic, in Amherst County, according to the Amherst County death records. The information on the death record, including naming his parents as Charles and Jane Coffey, was given by Henry's son, Henry F. Coffey. His place of burial is unknown.

Paulin left all to Avarilla, Henry and Mary. All persons in this household are listed in the 1850 Census. By 1860, all but the youngest 4 are gone.
